'Wonderful' Says Girl of New Legs—With Shoes

MEMPHIS.—For the first time in her 14 years Baby Jean Martin can wear stockings and dresses like other girls, and she says it's "wonderful."

The brown-haired girl of Dell, Ark., also has the first legs she ever had—artificial ones—and can now walk. But this is only part of her new found happiness.

"I'm wearing shoes and stockings," she exclaimed happily as she tried out her new pair of store limbs, with some assistance from crutches.

She now can wear dresses like the others, too, and she's already picked out the gown for her piano recital at Blytheville's Calvary Baptist church—"a blue one and very full."

Baby Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Martin, was born with both legs off above the knees. She attended school in a wheelchair.

A Blytheville insurance man, E. H. Ford, noting her courage and cheerful spirit, started a fund to buy her some artificial legs. The fund was quickly oversubscribed.

She has to walk with crutches now, but doctors say she probably can walk with a cane in two months and maybe get along without any help later.

Kitten Starts Across Street And then Things Happen

EAU CLAIRE, WIS. — A kitten tried to cross a busy street then: John B. Allen, 23, swerved his car to avoid hitting it, and crashed into a pole bearing an electric transformer. High tension wires broke, fell on the car and set it afire. Allen got out safely. The car was a total loss.

The fire department arrived, put out the fire and started to leave. A second pole collapsed, missing the truck by five feet.

The power circuit, covering a large section of the city, was out for 12 minutes.

The kitten was unhurt.

New Device Ends Peril of Break in Fire Company Hose

CHICAGO. — Northwestern university has created development of a new device that would protect firemen from the dangers of bursting hoses.

The invention, called the sealed air chamber, also eliminates vibrations and knocks heard in home and apartment plumbing systems when faucets are turned off.

Lewis H. Kessler, professor of sanitary engineering, and Merrill B. Gamet, associate professor of civil engineering, developed the device at the university's technological institute.

Farm Topics

Milk Products Fill Many Poultry Needs

Health and Production Improved by Their Use

Dried milk products—dried skim milk, dried buttermilk and dried cheese whey—are important ingredients in practically all commercially mixed poultry mashes, and are important to farmers seeking added quality in their poultry rations.

Many supplements included in poultry feeds are added to provide one specific nutrient. But milk products provide many nutrients and perform several important jobs in a poultry mash.

All three popular milk product supplements long have been recognized as rich natural sources of riboflavin. This vitamin has been found necessary to health and growth in chicks and is helpful in maintaining high egg production and increased hatchability.

Value of farmers' grain will be increased by mixing into the mashes one of the dried milk products.

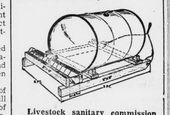
These milk products also are high in lactose or milk sugar. This is important in poultry feeds because milk sugar favors development of a "friendly bacteria" in the intestines and this helps provide good intestinal health.

Proteins found in milk products have a high biological or growth promoting value. They provide balance to the proteins in cereal feeds. The combination of lactose and high quality protein in these products helps assure more complete assimilation and utilization of other nutrients in mixed feeds.

And of course dried skim milk, dried buttermilk or dried cheese whey comes sizable quantities of calcium and phosphorus and the other minerals of milk.

Herds and Flocks For Greater Profit

Biggest single labor savor for poultrymen is water piped to all buildings and to the range. Use automatic floats at drinking fountains to control water flow. Sketch shows an automatic waterer made of an oil drum mounted on skids, suitable for use on range.



Livestock sanitary commission design.

Pigs can be castrated any time after they are a week old. They do not suffer as much of a setback when young as they do at 50 pounds or heavier.

Clay Pipes Change

Newcastle Disease of Poultry Is Spreading

The fight against Newcastle disease of poultry has been carried into 40 states. Producers of broilers have been hard hit. Large-scale vaccination trials are in progress but results will not be determined for some time. Until preventive methods can be determined, sanitation and daily killing and disposal of all sick birds offer the best and perhaps only solution to the problem at present.

FATHER DARKLEAF

By The Editor

Mr. L. E. Smith has quite a reputation as a gardener. This year he seems to be breaking all records. He sent us an Irish potato this week that tipped the scales at 17 ounces. As though that were not enough, he then produced one that weighed 23 ounces.

Speaking of vegetables, there were plenty of beans in Appomattox yesterday. A car driven by A. E. Harwood and a North Carolina truck bound from Tennessee to a cannery in Eastern Virginia, were in a collision. The truck overturned and upwards of 300 bushels of string beans were scattered over Route 460 midway through town. No one was hurt, but considerable property damage was done.

The Appomattox Red Sox lost a baseball game to Red House, played Tuesday night in Farmville, 6 to 1.

We had a pleasant chat this week with the new high school principal, John E. Peters. He is a member of the Lions Club and wears a one hundred percent attendance button. He is a Baptist, And he has had considerable experience as a referee for athletic contests.

We regret to hear that Vince Lenardi will not be back at the A.H.S. coach this fall. We understand he has accepted another coaching job. Vince was popular here and did a commendable job of building up athletic interest at the school.

We have neglected to state that we have recently installed a larger, faster and better press in our shop and that the Times-Virginian is now being printed on same. We are sure you have noticed the improvement in the quality of print. We waited to see how it was going to run out before mentioning it in our news columns, because it operates on different mechanical principles from the press we have used for so many years and we wanted to be satisfied that we had figured out all its "tricks". We have been using it now some six weeks, and are very well pleased with its performance. Printing machinery is very expensive and a problem to move and set up, due to its power size and weight. But it has a number of long life years in it. Our shop is so crowded with machines now, don't be alarmed if you see yo editor get lost.

Nothing cheers a publisher more than to have numbers of new subscribers. Many new readers have been added to our list in the past few weeks. Welcome, folks!

State Plans More Waysides On Highways

Richmond, Va., July 17.- (Special to Times-Virginian).- With State Highway Department ("wayside parks" doing a booming business during this record year for highway travel, the landscape division of the department announced today that "by next spring at the latest" some 1,000 picnic tables would be installed at 10-mile intervals along the primary roads of the State.

The tables are currently on order and if shipment comes through may be put into service before the summer is over. Plus accompanying trash baskets, the tables will be placed on highway right-of-way "beneath shade trees" along every primary highway in Virginia.

The 39 wayside parks, 34 of which are completely developed, are attracting increasing numbers of tourists and local picnic groups, highway landscape officials said. The frequent picnic tables will supplement the services of these waysides.

All of the State's waysides have parking areas, fireplaces, picnic tables, and trash baskets. Many have running water, rest rooms, wading ponds and other attractions to provide rest and comfort for the traveling public.

Highway safety is the chief function of the wayside, the department pointed out, since they provide attractive spots for weary motorists to break long journeys with rest and relaxation.

Developed waysides of interest to motorists in this area include:

Appomattox Wayside, at Appomattox Surrender Grounds, Route 24, and Holliday Lake Wayside, near Appomattox - Buckingham county line on Route 24.
